PIPE & DRAPE COVERING THE BASICS

Everything starts with a good foundation. Follow this guide to learn about pipe & drape:

The image shown is for reference only.

- 1 Pipe and drape begins with 6 lb to 62 lb bases, as dictated by the height and weight of the drapes.
- 2 As required, sandbags are added for extra safety and stability.
- 3 Next, we offer a selection of slip-lock adjustable telescoping uprights that range from 2'-3' to 14'-24' high. We also offer standard non-adjustable uprights which are best suited for trade show booths and knee walls.
- 4 Because every room is different, we offer a complete selection of adjustable horizontal drape supports ranging from 2'-3' to 9'-16' wide. They are the perfect solution for any room size and will support the chosen drape.
- 5 Once the hardware has been established, the drapes are selected for each horizontal section.
- 6 An optional header valance can also be added.

DRAPE FAQ

What is fullness?

When a drape is sewn or gathered with more fabric than the width of coverage, it's called fullness.

Why add fullness?

Fullness adds depth, richness, opacity, and sound absorption. Most velour drapes are quoted at 50% fullness (1½ times the fabric width). An ultra thin sheer drape may be quoted at nearly 200% (4 times the width). Our drapes are sewn flat, allowing the user to choose their own look.

What is finish?

Finish refers to the top and bottom of the drape. Our drapes are typically finished with a 4"-6" pipe pocket that allows for sleeving the drape directly onto the hardware. The original Velcro Tear Back Pocket opens to eliminate humps where the drapes meet. Most drapes taller than 8'h also include blind ties that allow the drape to be tied directly to a pipe, such as truss or existing theatre pipe.

What is FR and IFR?

FR (Flame Retardant) refers to fabric that has been topically treated with a flame retardant solution. FR-treated fabric needs to be re-treated over time or during cleaning to remain flame retardant.

IFR (Inherently Flame Retardant) refers to fabric that is woven with flame resistant yarn or treated during the finishing process, thereby guaranteeing its safety for the life of the drape.

Both FR and IFR meet the industry standards set forth by the NFPA 701 Small Scale. Certificates are available upon request for all our rental drapes. Drape Kings also offers flame proofing and cleaning services.
